The clash between the local liquor dealers and the no-license forces over the legality of the petition filed with the selectmen asking for a right to topte on the license question at the town election next Monday has resulted in a victory for the prohibition advocates. At five o'clock Thursday afternoon Judge Gardiner Greene of legition in accordance with the agreevote on the license question at the town election next Monday has resulted in a victory for the prohibition advocates. At five o'clock Thursday afternoon Judge Gardiner Greene of the Superior court informed George E. Parsons clerk of the court that he will issue the maridamus asked for by the no-license forces. His memorandum of decision, he informed Clerk Parson will be filed this (Friday), morning. morning.

The objection to the petition by the liquor dealers was made on the grounds that some thirty of the adgrounds that some thirty of the addresses alongside the signers' names did not correspond with the addresses given on the last official voting list. The liquor dealers contended that the petition could not legally be pecepted as the law provides that the addresses of the signers on such a petition must correspond with the addresses on the voting list.
